HAS VANISHEDLetters Indicate Carlisle
Enjoys Life in Denver;
"On Way to Texas."

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 22.—William L. Carlisle, the train bandit, who held up Union Pacific train No. 18 Tuesday night, seems to have completely vanished. Police continued the search today but with no trail to follow and little prospect of success.

Union Pacific officials still were apprehensive of a second robbery and issued orders to travel on all passenger trains. The bandit's funds are believed to be limited to $25,000 which he obtained in the Tuesday night robbery and in a dry state this might last him a much longer time than the same amount would during the bandit's spectacular career in 1918.

May Be in Denver.
Denver, Colo., Nov. 22.—Feasibility that the train bandit, William L. Carlisle, is in Denver was forced upon local police officers last night and early today by letters mailed here to Denver newspapers and a postcard addressed to chief of police Hamilton Armstrong, purporting to have been written by Carlisle.

In his letters to the newspapers, the author said he would try the Denver & Rio Grande railroad next.

Little evidence was placed in the letters at first. One was sent to an afternoon newspaper and another to a morning paper. Late last night, however, a Union Pacific official at Cheyenne telephoned to Denver and

In Illinois BankWarrant Issued for Missing
Officer After Bank
Fails to Open.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 22.—The Illinois State Bank of Crest, Ill., today failed to open. It was announced a warrant charging embezzlement had been issued for the missing cashier, Gust Zander, in connection with thefts of more than $400,000.

The bank was capitalized at $25,000. "The vault door and the janitor are left—there's about all," said a state bank examiner.

Speculation in which he was said to have lost more than $100,000 in a years' trading was blamed for Zander's alleged speculation.

Two days ago the bank examiners went to Crest to examine the institution in response to an anonymous letter from a person claiming to be the state bank examiner, and described as a sister of his church in Crest. He is 27 years old, married and has a seven year old son.

Coming to Crest.
Asked that the letters be sent there for examination. "That is an old Carlisle trick," said the official. "They are very apt to be genuine." The letters were mailed by special delivery to Cheyenne for comparison with the bandit's handwriting.

The postcard to chief Armstrong was dropped in the postoffice shortly after midnight. As soon as it was found by a postal clerk, the police department was notified. The postcard said:

"Hello, chief. I have had a nice time. You have a bunch of good fellows. They showed me around. Next time you hear from me I will be in Texas."

Union Pacific officials at Cheyenne, however, are not counting on the absence of Carlisle from that state.

Since the robbery of the Los Angeles Limited Tuesday night the railroad has had two armed guards on every passenger train and the road has spent $15,000 in sending armed guards in pursuit. Some of the losses are still searching the land lands of Wyoming in a wide radius of Medicine Bow, home of the robbery.

Members of the crew, who were carrying photographs of Carlisle, declared their belief the man was Carlisle. Kirby is 175 miles from Casper.

The man was found hiding under a bank in a way car. He declared he was a bootlegger attempting to make his escape.

Root Accuses
'Dry' Leaders
In ArgumentCharges They Took Advantage of Year of Grace
Allowed Liquor Men.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—The validity of the wartime prohibition law and the Volstead act for its enforcement was put squarely before the supreme court Friday with the closing of arguments attacking and defending both measures.

After rendering opinion Monday the court will recess until December 1, so it is not likely the cases will be decided before that time. National constitutional prohibition becomes effective January 16, and if an opinion is not rendered by that date, it would make no difference what the court decided.

Huppert Appeal Argued.
Arguments Friday were confined entirely to the appeal by Jacob Huppert, a New York brewer, from denial of proceedings brought to prevent federal revenue officers from interfering with the manufacture of beer containing more than one half of one per cent alcohol.

Root, counsel for Huppert, charged prohibition advocates in congress with taking advantage of the "year of grace" allowed by the constitutional amendment and which he said came "very near being a contract with the congress and the states, and with having 'hacked and harried' the liquor interests while attempting to shove forward national prohibition a few months under the pretext of the war emergency. Mr. Root also charged congress with unlimited power to the federal government.

Attacking the validity of the wartime prohibition act, William D. Guthrie, appearing also for Huppert, asserted the "mere fact that some men were drunk while the amendment did not expand or increase the powers of congress and that the act was absolute as to prohibition had been completed and the war ended.

Mr. Guthrie declared congress in the 15th amendment to the constitution of prohibition act did not see fit to use the term "alcoholic liquors" which would prohibit the use of any alcoholic beverage, while the Volstead act "attempts to change the standard" by the insertion by congress of provision making it apply to beverages containing more than one half of one per cent alcohol.

Assistant attorney general Friedman made closing statements for the government in which he denied the constitutionality of their opponents.
